Programme Out for Hunt Meeting at Brookline

Famous Amateur Meet
Books High-Class
Steeplechases.

RACES TO BE AT TWO AND ONE-HALF MILES

Mrs. Lathrop Brown is donor of the Chamblet Memorial Cup in Honor of Her Father.

Racing programmes are out, the earliest of the year in the North, for America's oldest hunt meeting. They announce the events for the thirty-fifth annual races of the Country Club, Brookline, the picturesque suburb of Boston, on Thursday, June 15, and Saturday, June 17. The book is of interest to all owners of steeplechases, hunters or backs fit to race with weight up. To borrow a comparison from British sport, as it was before the war, Brookline brings as many amateurs to the saddle as a Grand National and as fashionably attired a throng to the lawn and stand as "Royal Ascot."

The preliminary closing for the three highest class steeplechases of the year, the Chamblet Memorial, Annual, value $1,200, and for the National Hunt Cup, a $500 trophy, with $1,000 added in cash, will be on March 23. Each of the races is of about two and a half miles.

Mrs. Lathrop Brown is the donor of the Chamblet Memorial Cup, value $1,000, in honor of her father, Robert C. Hooper, who was the founder of the meeting and in his day the best known gentleman rider in New England, under the sobriquet of "Mr. Chamblet."

Hooper and bound afforded him the same of recreation, and he rode regularly each season with the Myopia Hunt Club. Oddly enough, however, Mr. Hooper's memory among sportsmen by the knowledge that he was by accident the first sponsor of the Boston terrier, America's only dog native to the land. It is Tom, a brindle and white light-colored terrier, imported from England by Mr. Hooper while he was a Harvard student, that fills the pedestal as the mascot of the Brookline races. His name tops all pedigrees as the prehistoric first cause that has made possible the racing and development of the strain, but that Tom was Mr. Hooper's college pal is not generally known.

A replica of the Chamblet Memorial Cup is presented to the winner of the trophy until the next renewal. A $2,000 purse is added, of which $300 goes to the second and $200 to the horse finishing third. Three wins, and in case of a tie, two, will win the cup on owner's property. In the five years of its history there has not been a double-header, the record standing: 1911, H. K. Vincent's Waterside; 1912, Mrs. J. H. Allen's Alibi; 1913, J. E. Davis's O'Hare; 1914, F. W. Sargent's, Big Sandy; 1915, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Cherry Malotte.

Mrs. Whitney last year also won the Country Club Grand National, which she rode for the Hon. James W. Gerard, now American Ambassador to Germany. Two of the flat races, respectively of one mile and three furlongs, and of one mile and three furlongs, gentlemen to ride, are limited to horses owned by the United States army.

Handball Was Only Game at Princeton 50 Years Ago

Writing of college athletics at Princeton during the early fifteenth century, states the "Alumni Weekly":

"In those days there was no gymnasium, nor any formal means of exercise. Baseball had not been invented and football was not yet dreamed of in the open space at the rear of West had been erected a short, high brick wall. Against it we played 'handball,' which was governed by most of the rules of tennis. Instead of racquets, we struck the ball with the palm of our hand."

"We did a great deal of walking (an exercise far more healthful for the lungs than the bar and traverse of a gymnasium). Also, there was jumping on the campus, near the cannon—several varieties of jumps—standing, running single and double, and the like. I was a good jumper. In the African forest, I saved my life, when I jumped aside from the very face of a charging wounded elephant."

Crawford There or Thereabouts

Wahoo Sam Crawford, of the Detroit Tigers, is entitled to honorable mention in any extended résumé that has to do with 1915 hitting. In nineteen years of professional baseball playing Barber Sam has hit 300 on thirteen different occasions, and eleven of these marks were made in the National and American leagues.

GIANTS REACH MARLIN AND SCOOT TO LINKS

Thirty-eight players ready to begin spring grind. Marlin, Tex., Feb. 27.—The baseball squad of the New York National League club arrived here to-day to begin spring training. Manager John J. McGraw, Captain Larry Doyle and Fred Brannan, infielder, reached town early and had taken to the golf links when Christy Mathewson ushered in the "rookies" who have been drafted or purchased since last season. They are James Thorpe, George Kelley, outfielder, and Rube Schauer, pitcher, outfielder, several days ago. The squad numbers thirty-eight men.

D. RUDOLPH LEAVES CAMPUS FOR CAMP

Williamstown, Mass., Feb. 27.—Dick Rudolph, who has been coaching the Williams pitching staff for the last month, left this evening for the Braves on their spring training trip. Under his tutelage notable progress has been made in the "arm" of the pitcher, who has been especially developed through his instruction, and Young, the mainstay of the staff, and Smith are also showing up well.

On account of the resignation through illness of Leonard Jacob, 16, manager of the team, the ballots cast in the spring of 1914 have been recounted, and Arthur Temple, 16, of Larkspur, Tex., has been elected to fill the vacancy.

C. H. Thomas in Market for Cleveland A. A. Club

Chicago, Feb. 27.—Charles H. Thomas, former president of the Chicago National League club, admitted to-night that he and Roger Bresnahan were in the market for the Cleveland franchise of the American Association.

Mr. Thomas did not explain to what extent the deal had progressed, nor was he communicative as to a report that he and Bresnahan have their eyes on the Denver club of the Western League, owned largely by James McGill, if the Cleveland negotiations fail.

Fullman Soccer Team Wins

Chicago, Feb. 27.—The Fullman team defeated the McDuffys by a score of 3 to 1 in the second game of the national amateur soccer championship series to-day. The victorious team will play the Parkards, of Detroit, next Sunday at Chicago.

Will Old Father Time Displace Sam Crawford?

This Is Pertinent Query in Detroit as Tigers Leave for the South.

Detroit, Feb. 27.—Two members of the Detroit American League Baseball Club, with secretary Charles Navin and several newspaper men, left here to-night for the training camp at Wapakoneta, Ohio. The players who left are Catcher McKee and Pitcher James. The party will arrive at St. Louis tomorrow, where several pitchers and battery coach William Sullivan are expected to report to Secretary Navin. Most of the other pitchers and catchers, regulars and recruits, are to arrive at Wapakoneta by March 1. They received permission to proceed directly from their homes to the training camp. Records show that Detroit, by terrific hitting and fine work on the bases, took an early lead in many games in 1915, only to lose the contest when a pitcher or, sometimes, pitchers went to pieces. Toward the end of the season Daus was considered the only twirler who could be relied on, and even he showed the strain of overwork. Wildness was the chief fault of some pitchers, and Daus's ineffectiveness was thought to be due to fatigue. He used his curve ball, which he previously had used, with telling effect to mask his being slow ball delivery. Beemer, who begins his fourth season with the Tigers, has shown flashes of sensational form on several occasions, but he and Lowmeyer were both troubled by lack of control. Jennings hopes to receive good service from Daus, Coveleskie, James and Boland. Cunningham has a great minor league record, but the Tigers' manager is averse to speaking enthusiastically of his recruits until they have been thoroughly tested under fire. The infielders and outfielders are due at Wapakoneta on Monday, March 6. This will give them nearly two weeks

Wild Bill Donovan's Big Flock of Southpaws

Splinters and Cinders.

The possibilities of Maynard White, a former Stuyvesant High School student as a champion sprinter, have already been noticed by Archie Hahn, who is now coaching the track team of Brown University after a brilliant career while representing Michigan University. White is a constant winner in schoolboy meetings, holding the 100-yard title for many years before his entry into the Providence institution last fall. He stamped his first effort in intercollegiate sport by outrunning Techster, of Harvard; Trendway, of Yale, and O'Hara, of M. I. T., three of the fastest dash men in the New England colleges.

The Big Green of Dartmouth will be conspicuous by its absence at the indoor intercollegiate team races next Saturday night. Lack of funds prevented the Hanover boys' appearance. However, Harry Hillman, the coach, will head a strong team to the outdoor meet at the Harvard Stadium in May.

Archie Mucka, of Wisconsin University, appears as the likely successor of the late Ralph Rose in the short putting event. The Western student, who holds the national outdoor title, began the present year by breaking the Western Conference record, on Saturday. His recent effort of 48 feet 6 inches was more than five inches better than his performance in winning the national title.

St. Paul's School is completing plans for a Long Island interschool track and field meet to be held probably in May. If it is successful the meeting will be made an annual attraction. The eligible schools should find more than twenty-five various teams entered. The St. Paul's team, a former Dartmouth athlete, is optimistic of the successful outcome of his pet scheme.

Tommy Lennon, the former Curtis High School runner, is turning the quarter-mile in practice close to 52 seconds. With his expected improvement, Lennon will be a welcome addition to the place of Ben Livingston, who will be on hand to defend the University of Pennsylvania's honors in the outdoor intercollegiate.

Western athletes are sure to cut a big figure in the points at the senior national championship. With the Chicago and Illinois Athletic associations sending on small but evenly balanced teams, local clubs will not find the path to victory so easy.

Will Old Father Time Displace Sam Crawford?

conditioning work, as the team has exhibited booked for March 12. Present plans call for two other exhibitions at Dallas with the New York Nationals and the squad will be in camp less than four weeks before the regular season begins. The odds are in favor of the closing days, but it will not be surprising if he does not. He seemed convinced last fall that he trained too hard in the South a year ago, and had decided to confine his conditioning to a few days' work. Although Cobb has grown noticeably heavier since the 1914 season and takes on more flesh during the winter than he formerly did, he felt that he was stale last September.

The Detroit team may open the 1916 playing season with a veteran line-up. It is quite generally conceded that there are only two positions to be fought for, namely, right field and first base. Crawford slowed up noticeably in his fielding last year, although he hit well in strikes, and Burns, the regular first baseman, did not recover completely from an operation for appendicitis during the training camp. The odds are in favor of the veterans retaining their positions, however, as it is felt that Harry Heilmann is the only youngster who can replace either. Heilmann, who hit more than 300 with San Francisco last year, has played right field and first base.

If Crawford should be forced to bow to Father Time he would have nothing to worry about. His contract, quite generally believed to call for a salary of $7,500 a year, is of the so-called ironed kind and does not expire until the end of the 1917 season. When he returned to New York from the trip around the world with the Chicago White Sox two years ago, he was met at the dock by Federal League magnates. He was offered a big salary increase if he would join their ranks, it has been said.

"I'll talk business with you after I see Mr. Navin, president of the Detroit club," Crawford told them, according to one version of the story. The deal was broken with Navin and later attached his signature to a four-year contract.

Crawford is considered one of the most popular players who has ever donned a Detroit uniform. His scorching drives to the right field bleachers and into and over them have made much local history. He always has been known as a steady, quiet, unassuming player, and his passing from the life of the Tigers, which may not be for several years, will probably cause as much genuine regret as did the passing of another hero of halcyon days—Wild Bill Donovan.

Hey, There! Get This; Wild Bill Picks Team

Take a Look at the 1916 Yanks as They Are Picked in February by Donovan.

Macon, Ga., Feb. 27.—The Yankees to-day enjoyed a day of rest, with all the accent on the ENJOYED. While the players are not in that condition where they may be classed as hors de combat, practically every man on the squad has aching muscles as a result of two to four hours' work daily after a winter lacking in exercise. Fine weather was the order of the day and the majority of the players took long walks during the afternoon.

That Donovan plans to start Joe Gedeon at second base on his team of regulars when the practice games begin was made evident to the press when Wild Bill announced the line-ups for first and second teams. These games may be started late this week, but if the condition of the veterans does not warrant such a proceeding the exhibition season will be delayed until the beginning of next week.

The line-up which Donovan has decided upon for his regulars consists of Pipp, first base; Gedeon, second base; McGovern, third base; Baker, third base; High, left field; Magee, center field; and Miskel, right field.

At this early date the wide arrangement may carry no special significance, yet it would occasion no great surprise if the Yankees should line up in precisely this way for the opening game of the season at the Polo Grounds in April. Most of the players named in the line-up appear certain to be retained as regulars.

The second team will be made up as follows: McGovern, first base; Mullen, second base; McGovern, third base; McGovern, third base; Cook, left field; Hartzell, Miller, Hendryx and Layden in the outfield.

Mullen may be shifted later to the first team to divide the second base with no longer focus in the outfield. McGovern, first base; Mullen, second base; McGovern, third base; McGovern, third base; Cook, left field; Hartzell, Miller, Hendryx and Layden in the outfield.

It appears likely that the squad will not be here in its entirety by Wednesday, despite the fact that all the players received orders to report by that time. Frank Baker had about decided to stay out of baseball when the Yankees closed the deal for his services last week. He has asked for a few days' grace to settle up some affairs before embarking for a season's campaign in the game.

Paddy Baumann, who is engaged in business in Indianapolis, has also asked Donovan for a few extra days. It is thought now that neither of these players will arrive in Macon before March 5.

Manager Donovan has abandoned his idea of holding special practice sessions for the recruits after the full squad arrives. He had thought of taking the youngsters out for special instruction for an hour each morning before starting the regular season. In place of the extra session, Donovan has arranged for some games with Mercer University, of Macon, and the New York line-up for these contests will be made up almost entirely of youngsters.

McGovern will stick with the recruits and leave the older players under the direction of Joe Kelley and Duke Farrell.

JUMPERS WILL TAKE OFF FROM CORK MAT

An innovation in the way of a cork carpet mat will assist the competitors in the running high jump at the annual senior indoor championships at the 224 Regiment armory on Saturday evening, March 18. The floor of the Washington Heights district is exceedingly slippery, and prone to cause falling after the athletes have taken their preliminary run for their leap over the cross bar.

The new device will permit the jumpers to wear spiked shoes, and will be capable of clearing a height of more than 6 feet. Frederick W. Rubien, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union, conceived the cork carpet idea. With the resiliency that the cork is expected to give, the record of 6 feet, 2-7-8 inches made by S. C. Lawrence, of the Boston Athletic Association, in 1911, seems to be in grave danger of being wiped away.

N. Y. A. C. LEADS BOWLING RACE

Roseville Has the Highest Team Average—Roberts Leads the Individual.

Another week in the Athletic Bowling League finds the New York Athletic Club team still holding down first place. Its record of twenty-eight wins and eleven losses is two games each way better than that of the Roseville Athletic Association quintet. Because of a postponed series, the official figures show the Liederkrantz five as the same as a week ago, twenty-four and twelve.

Although two games behind the leader, Roseville, as usual, easily heads the list in the matter of team average, its present mark of 838.25 being more than seven points better than New York. That the pace all round is fast is shown by the fact that four of the teams are above the 900 mark.

In the individual race it's Sam Roberts' turn to top the list. This local bowler, with 193.38, is now a few pins ahead of his club mate, Fred Gerdes, who had been leading. Harris, the Jersey City man, who has not rolled enough games to qualify, has a mark of 195.18.

ATHLETES DEFY RAILROAD JAUNTS

Common Now for College Teams to Travel Thousands of Miles.

That a stretch of many thousand miles of land or water no longer acts as a bar to amateur sports contests is to be again demonstrated during the coming season of outdoor competition. Sweden is to send a track team of her best athletes to America for a series of international meets, and almost every college schedule shows one or more intercollegiate contests. This is particularly true in the 1916 football, rowing, baseball and athletic dates.

A five to ten day trip across the continent no longer focuses in the Pacific Coast athlete. Stanford and California universities are both likely to be represented in the big Eastern and Middle Western intercollegiate track meets, with many other variety crews will row at either Ithaca or Poughkeepsie. California is at present a member of the Eastern Intercollegiate Association, and has made application for election to membership at the next annual meeting.

Both Stanford and California have completed off and on for many years in the Midwestern Conference meets. California also has invaded the Eastern intercollegiate championships, but Stanford has never sent her athletes to the Atlantic coast for a test against the pick of the Eastern universities.

The two Pacific Coast institutions are expected to have unusually strong track and field teams this year, and if they enter fair sized squads again in 1916, Stanford has made application for election to membership at the next annual meeting.

The conference records show that in recent years these universities have scored victories in many events. In 1910 both were among the leading place winners. A year later California was third out of a field of thirteen, Missouri and Chicago taking first and second places. California finished fifth in 1912.

The succeeding season the Berkeley athletes ran fourth, and in 1914 Stanford was second and California sixth out of twenty-one colleges.

California's record in the Eastern intercollegiate dates back to 1906, when the coast athletes won fifth place in 10 points. They came back again in 1909 and took sixth place with 5 points, and two years later were seventh with 9. After a lapse of eleven years California tried again and won seventh place with 10 points, and in 1914 took sixth place with 10 points. Last season, at Philadelphia, California did not compete, but thirteen colleges split 155 points.

Eighty-four of these have been lost by the graduation of place winners and still in college. Cornell, the 1915 winner, retains the largest number, having 21½ out of the winning 100 points. Stanford and California appear with strong teams on May 26 and 27 the splitting of points may prove disastrous for Cornell, Harvard, Yale, Pennsylvania, Princeton and Dartmouth, which finished in that order at Franklin Field in 1915.

ST. LOUIS BROWNS TO GO SOUTH TO-DAY

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 27.—The first contingent of the St. Louis Browns will leave here to-morrow for the spring training quarters at Palestine, Tex. The others will follow a few days later, and after all are assembled at the training grounds Manager Fielding Jones will have under his tutelage eighteen odd members of the St. Louis Browns and twelve former members of the St. Louis Federals.

Following is the roster of players expected to report at the spring training camp: Weisman, Plank, Crandall, Groom, Davenport, McCabe, Parks, Phillips, Baumgardner, Sims and Manning; Catchers—Hartley, Chapman, Severid and Clemons.

Infielders—Horton, Pratt, Johnson, Lavan, Deal, Austin and Paulette. Outfielders—Shotton, C. Walker, Marsans, Tobin and W. Miller.

Liederkrantz Bowlers Defeat Hudson Club

The Liederkrantz Club won the old game from the Hudson Club in a series of the New York Interclub Bowling League, as has been reported. Ralph Bresnahan, Bill McKee, John Ganzel and George Stovall, are a few of the many names mentioned in connection with the bosship.

WOULD JIU-JITSU BEAT JESS WILLARD?

That the Occidental athlete who will devote the necessary time and attention to training can hold his own in any form of sport the world around has again been demonstrated.

Allan Smith, a Scotchman employed by an American company in Japan, has recently been awarded the famous black belt given for proficiency in jiu-jitsu. In order to win this distinctive honor in the Japanese art of self-defense it is necessary to secure ten thousand falls. Up to a few days ago only three foreigners had won the black belt, although hundreds had tried and failed after long sessions of training and competition.

As a means of self-defense Smith asserts that jiu-jitsu is far superior to wrestling or sparring. He says: "A master of jiu-jitsu could have defeated Jack Johnson in his prime. My friend here," indicating his instructor, "would have had no trouble in defeating Johnson."

Amateur Hockey League Standing

	Won.	Lost.	Per cent.
St. Nicholas A. C.	4	1	.800
Boston A. A.	4	1	.667
Harvard Club	4	3	.571
Crescent A. C.	3	4	.429
Hockey Club	0	6	.000

NICKS NOT YET SURE OF FLAG

Hobey Baker and His Hockey Brethren Must Win Twice More.

Although they still hold the lead in the Amateur Hockey League race, the St. Nicks, with two more games to play in the series, will have to win both of them in order to clinch the 1916 championship. The Boston A. A. is close behind the leaders, and it looks now as if the final game, which will bring these two teams together here on March 11, will be the deciding contest of the year.

The Boston A. A. also has two more games to play. The first of these is on for decision to-morrow night in the St. Nicholas Rink, when the Unicorn seven will line up against the Hockey Club. The other is with the St. Nicks, the final contest on the regular schedule. If the Hub team beats the Hockey Club and the St. Nicks in turn, provided the champions score over the Harvard Club in Boston on Saturday night, a play-off for the championship will be necessary.

Present indications point to victories for both the St. Nicks and the Boston A. A., although the Hub seven, it is expected, will have a hard fight on its hands to beat the Hockey Club to-morrow night. Last season the Hockey Club beat the Unicorn combination in the second round, and Tom Howard's pupils believe they can repeat the stunt this year.

The St. Nicks are not looking forward to having an easy time with the Harvard Club on Saturday night. Coach Winsor's team has little chance to take the title, but it is a speedy combination, and may put a further crimp in the championship aspirations of Hobey Baker and his team mates.

Cornell Fellows are now making plans for a big skating carnival in the St. Nicholas Rink the week of March 13. In addition to the skating features several international hockey games are being arranged.

NEW CLUBHOUSE FOR PASTIME A. C.

Building Lost by Fire—Another Planned on "Scullers' Row."

The "Nursery of American Athletics," the Pastime Athletic Club, which recently lost its home and everything else it possessed by fire, on March 13, is planning to build a new clubhouse on the most palatial clubhouses of any club in the city by June 1. Members of the veteran organization, which, next to the New York Athletic Club, is the oldest athletic club in the great city—met yesterday at Central Park and voted to lease from the city a fair sized plot on the east bank of the Harlem River, or "Scullers' Row," as it is generally known.

Through Park Commissioner Whipple, the Pastime Club will take a twelve-year lease on a site 75 by 115 feet, adjoining the home of the Metropolitan Rowing Club. On his property will be built an up-to-date athletic clubhouse, 41 by 70 feet, in which all conveniences for athletes will be installed. There will be showers, handball courts and a gymnasium among the numerous features of the prospective Pastime headquarters.

Benefit To Be Given for the Pastime A. C.

A benefit will be given at the Fairmount Athletic Club on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, as has been reported. Ralph Bresnahan, Bill McKee, John Ganzel and George Stovall, are a few of the many names mentioned in connection with the bosship.

Twenty-five Field Goals Made.

A total of twenty-five field goals was spun into the basket when the Nameoka Athletic Club defeated the Ridgeville Athletic Association in a basketball game at Arlington Hall yesterday. The score was 85 to 14.

Lots of Bosses.

Toledo will not want for managers if she gets the Cleveland American Association club, as has been reported. Ralph Bresnahan, Bill McKee, John Ganzel and George Stovall, are a few of the many names mentioned in connection with the bosship.

LIEDERKRANTZ BOWLERS

The Liederkrantz Club won the old game from the Hudson Club in a series of the New York Interclub Bowling League, as has been reported. Ralph Bresnahan, Bill McKee, John Ganzel and George Stovall, are a few of the many names mentioned in connection with the bosship.

LAJOIE EXCELS HONUS WAGNER WITH BLUDGEON

Nap Has Beaten the 400 Mark Twice and Hit 300 Fifteen Times.

By LEE ARMS.

Al Munro Lajoie, the well known juggler of baseball figures, who can keep some seventeen sets of batting averages in the air with letting one hit the floor, pointed out with the authority of an Archimedes the other day that John Honus Wagner was the only man in baseball who has ever hit 300 or better seventeen times in a row. Mr. Lajoie was precisely right. Pittsburgh's first citizen, who is built from the belt down on the architectural plan of a triumphal arch, is, as we understand the matter, the greatest hitter of concentrated 300 averages in the world.

Yet let not Mr. Lajoie nor any other statistician say that the Flying Dutchman is the only man who has hit 300 seventeen times in the major league. There are others, or at least there are another.

He is Napoleon Lajoie, and if Hans Wagner gets any super-normal amount of advertising out of the fact that he is a forty-two year old man, he has hit 300 on seventeen different occasions, the good citizens of Woonsocket, R. I., are going to begin writing letters to the editor.

The Grand Old Man of the American League was born in Woonsocket—in fact, he may have inherited that awful swatting tendency from the penult and antepenult of that fair hamlet, which is beyond the mark, and neither here nor there, as it were.

Lajoie, too, has hit 300 during seventeen different seasons. To be more accurate, he hit 300 on fifteen different years and above 400 twice. In the season of 1907 and 1908 he hit 300 in the season of 1907 and 1908, respectively. Otherwise Larruping Larry would hold the record which is a present in the archives of the Carnegie Museum in Pittsburgh and credited to the said Mr. Wagner.

Frenchman was so embarrassed over that 1907-08 debacle that he promptly came back and hit 324 in 1909, and then hoisted it to a mere 384 in 1910. Ever since that year there have been dragging the rivers for the bodies of those experts who predicted that Lajoie would never again be the slugger of the good old days.

There were a few good old days left in the old boy who came out of the tertiary period of baseball was indicated by the fact that from 1910 on he hit 300 or better in 1911, 1912, 1913, 1914, 1915, 1916, 1917, 1918, 1919, 1920, 1921, 1922, 1923, 1924, 1925, 1926, 1927, 1928, 1929, 1930, 1931, 1932, 1933, 1934, 1935, 1936, 1937, 1938, 1939, 1940, 1941, 1942, 1943, 1944, 1945, 1946, 1947, 1948, 1949, 1950, 1951, 1952, 1953, 1954, 1955, 1956, 1957, 1958, 1959, 1960, 1961, 1962, 1963, 1964, 1965, 1966, 1967, 1968, 1969, 1970, 1971, 1972, 1973, 1974, 1975, 1976, 1977, 1978, 1979, 1980, 1981, 1982, 1983, 1984, 1985, 1986, 1987, 1988, 1989, 1990,
